"The Mahmoudieh Canal, which connects the Alexandria docks with the Egyptian portion of the Nile, was completed by Muhammed Ali in 1819. Although adapted for steamers, its progenitor, Alexander the Great, had much the same plan in his mind when he made the first canal to connect the Nile with the sea at Alexandria. The scenery along its banks is typical of this fertile land of minarets and domes."

Dear Jack,
Thanks for your letter which I received quite safely. I am sorry to hear that you have had a rotten time with the 'flu but I suppose you are quite well again now. I am very busy at present as I have to work overtime, but I hope to get a week's holiday soon. I am going to the Exhibition with Dad and Mum on Saturday. I suppose you will be going to the Exhibition with your mother. I am sending you a P.C. of the Exhibition. I am sending you a P.C. of the Exhibition. I am sending you a P.C. of the Exhibition
